

The law should stand as it is. I have an unlisted phone number, and was receiving up to 5 telemarketing calls each day. Since I added my phone number to the "do not call" list, the calls have dropped significantly. I feel that the telemarketing calls are an unwelcome intrusion to my home. The reason that I pay for an unlisted phone number is that strangers don't call my home. If I don't want someone to call my home, they shouldn't be able to call me. Isn't that my right?
